Montessori School of Louisville relocating to Springhurst in August, 2009

Louisville, KY – April 15, 2009 – Montessori School of Louisville is relocating to 10263 Champion Farms Drive in the Springhurst area. The school plans to begin the 2009-10 school year in the new facility. The new facility will feature an infant-toddler classroom, three early childhood classrooms, two elementary classrooms and one middle school classroom. Additional space will include libraries, multipurpose rooms and an outdoor classroom.

“The move to a new facility enables Montessori School of Louisville to realize the strategic goals outlined by the board of directors, and the school community. This is an exciting new chapter in the rapid growth we are seeing for Montessori methodologies in education,” said Board President Sue Perram.

“We will greatly improve the Montessori learning experience by providing our students and teachers with access to a custom-designed Montessori environment at Springhurst,” said director Cynthia M. M. Gonzalez.

Montessori parents and educators founded the school in 2006 following the closure of Ursuline Montessori’s elementary program. Montessori School of Louisville has operated without debt, doubled enrollment and reached capacity while leasing space in the former Our Mother of Sorrows School location on Eastern Parkway. The new Springhurst location is the result of two years of research to identify the best available location for the present and future needs of the school.

Brian Forrest and Tim Brown of Hoagland Commercial Realtors assisted in the acquisition of the new location for the school.
